Woodland, parkland, hills, views, historic house, bluebells in season

In Brief

This is developing into a classic walk! Woodland wonders of Ranmore Common, great views from the North Downs and the Polesden Lacey Estate (with options to visit the gardens or waltz around them). This revision solves an old problem of mud churned up by forestry on the bridleway, by providing a scenic walk over the meadow tops. (To avoid livestock, you might want to use part of another walk: Lonesome Ranmore Ramble.) The famous FFW “twist” at the end is now simpler to follow.

The walk goes through the Polesden Lacey estate with its celebrated country house. The attractive main route avoids the garden area and takes you round to the entrance where you can use the shop, loos, café and restaurant (closed 24-25 Dec) without having to pay the entrance fee. There is an alternative route through the garden area (closed 24-25 Dec), and past the house, for NT members (or visitors happy to pay the entrance fee).

At the time of writing, all the paths on this walk were completely clear, so there was no challenge to bare legs. However, in high summer, especially in the last section, you may find some high scratchy undergrowth, making long trousers by far the better option. The terrain underfoot is clear, but in a wet winter boots are necessary in case of ice and several muddy patches. (In 2022, one stretch had been churned up.) With only one seasonal sheep pasture, one minor road, and no stiles, this walk is ideal for your dog.

The walk begins at the National Trust (NT) Ranmore Common car park, nearest postcode RH5 6SY, www.w3w.co/banana.joke.noise, grid ref TQ127502. This is a free car park on Ranmore Common Road, a mile further west from the Denbies Hillside car park. Denbies Hillside and Polesden Lacey car parks are alternative starting points for this walk, but they both incur charges (though free to NT members). For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

The Walk

- 1 From the back of the Ranmore Common car park, take the broad path near the entrance, past a heavy metal barrier, leading into the woods. Follow this wide zigzagging path, avoiding all turn-offs, for 300m where you meet a wide crossing path. Go straight across regardless. Your path winds and begins to go downhill, bringing you after 250m to another 4-way junction with a fingerpost. Turn left here on a wide level path, part of the North Downs Way (NDW). This long-distance path runs from Farnham to Dover, via Folkestone or Canterbury in Kent. Your path runs under austere beeches and yews, giving you views to your right into the Tillingbourne valley where the foliage permits. After more than ½ km you reach a 4-way fingerpost at a slanting crossing path. Keep ahead on the NDW for another 30m and go right here through a wooden swing-gate onto the open hillside where there are two wooden benches from where you can admire the view. (If you want to keep the walk ultra-simple, you can stay on the NDW through the woods all the way to Steer's Field.) Bear left past the second bench on a level path, parallel to the path you were on, still with great views. In 300m you pass another bench seat. Avoid a wooden swing-gate here where a path leads back into woods (it re-joins the NDW just before Steer's Field). Follow one of the narrow paths along the hillside, not far from the fence and woodland on your left. In another 300m, the woodland on your left ends and your path suddenly bends left and takes you through a small wooden gate past a NT sign for Steer's Field. (If you see cattle here, they are the mild-mannered belted Galloway variety.) Go straight up the steepish grassy slope, going over a crossing path, heading for the road and car park. Here, at Denbies Hillside, you have the best views.

This famous viewpoint is named after the nearby Denbies Estate with its vineyard. You have views south to Westcott and Dorking and to Leith Hill Tower.

Exit Steer's Field through a wooden gate into the Denbies car park where there is usually a small café-on-wheels. Turn left beside the car park, parallel to the road. After passing a red-tiled house on your left, switch to the other side of the road. Ignore the first fingerpost pointing into the woods and continue parallel to the road, passing a grey house, a cottage and another red-tiled house. Turn right after this house, ignore a metal barrier on your left and keep ahead past a new metal barrier, on a wide bridleway, close to the house and its garden.

After 20m, the main stone-surfaced track forks away to your left towards the Youth Hostel, as indicated by the YH sign. Ignore this left fork and keep straight on along a wide earthy path into the woods]. You are now on a straight level path through one of the most magical and tranquil mixed leaf-tree woodland which forms part of Ranmore Common. Avoid all tempting side branches. The trees begin to thin out, giving you views of the surrounding hills, as the path starts to descend. You are now in a more open landscape of wild grass and shrubs. Finally, after a total of 1½ km on this path, just before a large green meadow, you come to a junction of paths where a path joins you from the right.

Ignore the first path sharp left and take the left fork soon after, keeping close to a meadow on your left. In 50m or so, another path joins you from the right and you arrive at a large wooden gate. Go through the smaller gate beside it into the grassy meadow. Your path across the meadow will be faint but clearly visible. It passes close to a solitary oak on your right and heads for another double wooden gate. But do not go through this gate! Instead, stay in the meadow, turning left and heading for the left-hand side of some newly-converted sheds (part of Bagden Farm, now holiday accommodation) where you find a 2-way fingerpost. Keep straight on, passing a flint wall on your right, going through a small wooden gate. Stay close to the house and garden to reach another small wooden gate to meet a wide driveway.

Turn left on this wide woodland avenue and follow it through the Polesden Estate, slightly uphill, passing a tempting bench seat. Stay on the main, path avoiding a left-branching path, curving right uphill. On your right a charcoal making area. At a fingerpost, keep straight on, going over a wide stone bridge. In another 50m, you meet another set of wooden gates marking the Garden Boundary and a notice indicating the opening times (10-5 or 4 in winter).

The Edwardian Polesden Lacey house and estate are the creation of a remarkable woman, Mrs Margaret ("Maggie") Greville, born in 1863, daughter of the hugely successful scottish brewer William McEwan. After her husband's early death she became a discreet hostess to kings and foreign princes. For a longer description, see the walk "Effingham and Polesden Lacey". The house and garden are open every day except 24-25 Dec.

There are two new seats here with views over the valley, where you can rest and make your next choice... .

Through the gate straight ahead is the garden area which is chargeable to non-members of the NT. The grounds offer a number of circular nature walks which go out of the garden boundary and back in again. So the main option below is the Meadows Route, whilst the Garden Route is for members of the NT or fee-payers. (The fee is not trivial.)

Turning round at the top, you can see the steeple of Ranmore church. Go through another wooden gate pair, cross straight over a track, go through another pair of gates and follow a path straight ahead across the pasture. At the corner of woodland, turn smartly left and follow a path along the edge of the meadow, past wooden gates, with a wood on your left. In the corner, go through a large metal kissing-gate by a notice board and keep straight on along the approach road towards the car park. Turn left through the courtyard for the shop, café, loos and restaurant. Afterwards, go out again and continue your walk beside the car park.

6b Garden Route. Go straight ahead through the gates and follow the wide track. Soon on your left is a half-ring of seats with a view over the valley showing the youth hostel Tanners Hatch at the edge of the forest. Shortly after, on your left is a classical portico. It leads you onto the Long Walk, a wonderful scenic saunter along the lawn (sometimes closed to allow the grass to recover), leading to the front of the house. If you decide to stay on the main path, follow it across the grass towards the house, turn right past the coffee kiosk and sharp left before the fence, leading through the arch in the little tower, hence out by the door into the courtyard (the only exit) where there are a restaurant, shop, café and loos. Go out at the main exit and immediately turn left beside the car park.

7 Continue on a footpath, past the car park on your right, to the far end. Go out through a small wooden gate and turn left on a wide driveway. Just before the driveway suddenly dips down to pass under a bridge, turn right on a path beside the crop field on your right. In around 150m, just before the first corner, at a marker post, turn left onto a narrow woodland path. Almost immediately you reach a fork. Take the left fork. You pass a tree garden on your left and, after 200m, come down to a meeting of tracks.

In 2022, forestry vehicles left deep unavoidable muddy ruts on the bridleways ahead, making walking very mushy and unpleasant. This will improve gradually. But an alternative is now provided which takes you across a lovely valley and down a pasture to the same point near the end. The only downsides are gradients and possible livestock. So take your choice between 8a, the Yew Tree Valley, and 8b, the Broad Way.

8a The Yew Tree Valley. Turn left through the smaller of two wooden gates and immediately go right through a large wooden gate into a green pasture which sweeps down across the valley ahead. At the bottom, go through a small wooden gate and up the other side to the top. Here, go through a small wooden gate and along the left-hand side of the next meadow. Go through a small wooden gate to veer right on a track by Yew Tree Farm. Immediately ignore a junction on your right and keep straight ahead on the wide stony track. You pass the Yew Tree Orchard on your left (a delightful picnic site) and a bench seat on your right. 50m after the seat, fork right to a large farm gate. Go through a small wooden gate on its left into a large pasture (* see green text below). Walk along the left-hand edge of this pasture. After a gap into the adjoining pasture, take a diagonal path which runs the whole length down to the bottom right-hand corner. Go through a small wooden gate and turn left on a wide track.

*Sometimes there is a herd of lovable dairy heifers grazing in this pasture, large enough to avoid them if you want to. Bovinophobes can instead stay on the main track for 500m, turn right at a yellow NT marker arrow (opposite a wide path and wooden barrier), do section 3 from the Lonesome Ranmore Ramble walk, turn left on the wide grassy path (see end) and follow it to the car park.

8b The Broad Way. Avoid the wooden gates on your left and go straight ahead on a wide track. This track gradually descends with great views to your left, soon on your right too. Take care as the stony surface may be muddy and slippery in winter! After ½ km, ignore a path on your right, a path on your left and a wooden gate on your left, staying on the main track. Your path is now sunken and gradually ascends. Keep going for just over ½ km. You pass a large grassy pasture on your left. Ignore a small wooden gate at the end and continue on the track, with houses now visible up on your right.

9 After a further 250m on this track, turn left at a blue NT waymarker [Apr 2023: replaced by a sign about ash dieback] onto a narrow path into the woods. (If you pass a house on your right, you have come 100m too far. If you miss this turn, the main track will take you to the road near the car park, but the surface is stony and much less attractive.) This path passes through a cut tree trunk and runs uphill, almost doubling back. In 120m it meets a junction on the left where a path is blocked off by a wooden barrier. Your path now bends sharp right and runs through deep woods. In about 300m, the terrain is more open with several banks of silver birch. This wide grassy path enters a clearing where it goes over a crossing path. 350m later it finally leads to the road opposite the car park where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: Ranmore Common Road is reached from Dorking. If coming on the A24 from Leatherhead, turn right just before Dorking, signposted Guildford, onto Ashcombe Road, keep straight ahead at a mini-roundabout and turn right at a T-junction signposted Ranmore. Follow the road, passing a junction on the right with the Denbies Hillside car park on your left (not your starting point!). Continue another mile to find the Ranmore Common car park on your left. (If you pass a junction with Hogden Road on your right, you have gone 200 yards too far.)

If coming from the Guildford direction on the A25, turn left as you enter Dorking, as for London, and keep left at a sign for Ranmore, continuing as in the paragraph above. (For the more adventurous, turn left off the A25 onto narrow White Down Lane just after Abinger Hammer, turn right at a crossroads onto Ranmore Common Road; the car park is $\frac{3}{4}$ mile on your right.)

Another good route is through Effingham (postcode KT24 5LU) and Critten Lane, a favourite way for drivers who like to travel these scenic byways of Surrey.
