Long woodland trails, hills, views, famous follies

In Brief

This walk is a great adventure in the wildest country you will find anywhere in the far South East, with long woodland trails, sudden views and unexpected encounters. It has been graded as "moderate" because of the long twisting trails where you need to be watchful. However, the paths are all well marked with arrows on posts or on trees, so there is no likelihood of going astray, unless you decide to explore these fascinating woods further. Several of the celebrated follies built by that eccentric landowner "Mad Jack" Fuller will also make an appearance as you pass south of the village of Brightling.

This walk provides a short optional excursion to a famous country house, Bateman's, former home of Rudyard Kipling.

There are sections with nettles and other scratchy undergrowth so you absolutely must cover your legs and, preferably, your arms too. Because of the long undulating woodland paths, boots are recommended. Your dog could certainly come too and will be able to run free for much of this walk.

The walk begins at Woods Corner, East Sussex, postcode TN21 9LB. There is parking near the Swan Inn. Other possible starts are: Burwash Weald, postcode TN19 7LA, where there is a parking strip just east of the Wheel pub and Brightling, postcode TN32 5HH, where there is plenty of parking beside the road. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

Overview

The Walk

If you'd like to get fuelled at the start, the "Swan Inn" is open for breakfast Fri, Sat, Sun 9.30-12.

Leg 1: Woods Corner to Brightling 4 km=2½ miles

Summary: This leg takes you by the "back door" through Purchase and Mansbrook Woods and past several of Mad Jack's follies to Brightling village with great views all around. You need to be alert because several signposts are missing.

- 1 Opposite the Swan Inn, take the minor road signposted Brightling. Soon the Brightling Observatory can be seen on the hill ahead.

John "Mad Jack" Fuller, one from the family that lived for centuries in Brightling, was a famous eccentric, addicted to building "follies". He was perhaps not the most likable character (he made a fortune from slavery) but one great beneficial act of his was to save Bodiam Castle (see the "Bodiam Castle" walk in this series). The Observatory was one of the few of his creations to be put to real use, although it is now a private house.

After 400m on the road, you reach a driveway on the right leading to a salvage site. Immediately fork right on a narrow path across a patch of grass (the old fingerpost has vanished). Go past a wooden barrier by a small pond into the wood on a forestry path signposted The Tower. (At the time of writing this section was rutted by forestry operations but now (2019) it is a beautiful wide green highway with beechwoods on your right.) In 30m, at a marker post, ignore a path on your left. 10m further on you'll see a white arrow signed The Tower. In 300m, ignore a rising path on your left. In another 300m or so, your path bends a little to the right and, in 150m, reaches a junction in an open area. Avoiding the wide curving path to your left, veer right on a straight wide sandy descending path.

- 2 After nearly 300m, at the bottom of a shallow dip, your path elbows right. In just 30m, you will notice a narrow diagonal crossing path on both sides. This is an official footpath but the markers have been lost. Turn left down a bank, going over a stream with an old wall on your left. The path rises a little and veers left by a wire fence. Go through a large wooden gate and straight across a sheep meadow to go through a similar wooden gate. Follow a grassy path over a stile and along the left-hand side of a large meadow. Soon, at a gate on the left, you have a good view of the Temple (under scaffolding in 2019).

Mad Jack's temple is much closer to the classic "folly", being built in the family grounds (Brightling Park) and visible from the house. For this reason, it's not accessible to visitors.

- 3 Keep straight ahead along the left-hand edge, through an open metal gate on a farm track and through another open gate. Turn right on a wide track, marked The Tower, past a farmyard, between large barns and straight ahead to a T-junction with another track. Ahead is a string of ponds where a historic sawmill once stood. Turn left on this track in the direction of a signpost to The Tower, passing more ponds down on your right. The track passes a cricket pitch on your left, crosses an equestrian course, bends right, wheels left and rises to a lane next to the farmyard of Ox Lodge. Turn right on the lane with great views right across the Weald. In 50m, go left over a stile beside a large metal gate. Go up towards a round copse which is entered near the left side. Here, concealed in the copse, is the Tower.

Mad Jack's Tower was a kind of tribute to the work he undertook at Bodiam Castle. It has a viewing platform but it doesn't seem to have any purpose. Strangely neglected by visitors and hidden in the trees, it stands there as an eternal mystery.

- 4 Continue in the same direction to emerge from this little round wood and go immediately right over a stile and left along the left-hand side of a horse pasture. You have fabulous views here down to the Darwell Reservoir and across to Darwell Wood. On the far side, go over a stile, left through a wooden swing-gate, along a footpath and through two metal swing-gates. (Should this path become overgrown again, you can use the wide horse path on your left part-way.) From here, your route is through a wooden swing-gate into a meadow, straight across on a clear path to a swing-gate on the other side, along the right-hand side of a small meadow to a swing-gate and out to the road in the village of Brightling. Keep straight ahead towards the church.

Mad Jack Fuller's home was Brightling Park, just before the church, not open to visitors however. It is now a venue for horse racing, as well as for weddings etc. Apart from what you saw in passing, he also constructed the Obelisk and the Sugar Loaf (looking like a spire). For his own mausoleum, he designed a Pyramid which you can see in the churchyard. There was a local legend that he had been entombed in full dress and top hat, seated at a dining table. Unfortunately later renovation proved this legend to be false. The Church dates from the 1200s and is well worth a look inside.

There's plenty of parking space on the roadside, making Brightling a good alternative start.

Leg 2: Brightling to Burwash Weald 5½ km=3½ miles

Summary: This leg is a long, complex, adventurous and exhilarating woodland walk. Some paths have been obscured by forestry operations and the waymarking is rather patchy but you will not get lost! Near the end, you have the opportunity for a small diversion to Bateman's, Rudyard Kipling's House (entrance fee payable). At the end of this leg, there is a friendly pub, The Wheel (re-opened in 2015).

- 1 Continue on the road through the village, between the Old School House and the Old Post Office, and, where the road bends left, turn right on a shingle track alongside Becket House, marked with a yellow arrow. After only 30m, go left through a small wooden gate and diagonally across a small field with a kitchen garden. In the corner, the path winds through trees, over a long-vanished stile, into a meadow of long grass. Your route follows the left-hand edge which becomes a wide grassy strip under overhead wires. Near the bottom, about 250m from the village, your path veers right before a wire fence, through a gap in the chestnuts, down through trees and, by an unnecessary stile, to a road. Turn left on the road.

3 Ignore a minor left fork shortly and stay on the main easy path. Your path passes a redundant stile at a yellow arrow and comes down to a wide sandy forester's track. As an option, you can now turn left on the forester's track and follow it all the way to the bridge at () below. The official footpath crosses the forester's track diagonally, a fraction left, on a narrow course through a reedy section and under trees. It then crosses the forester's track again diagonally and rises under trees. It goes down shallow steps and re-joins the forester's track. Follow the track for another 200m. It eventually bends right to go over a bridge across a hidden stream (). Now veer left on a rising path into a plantation of tall pines. Cross straight under wires and continue into the wonderful dark wood. After the pines, you pass a huge (but wounded) beech tree on your left. After the beech, your path curves a fraction right and you come to a T-junction. Turn left here on a broad stony bridleway. (Just 100m ahead – not on your route – you can see in the distance a bridge over the conveyor belt for the Brightling Gypsum mine.)

4 In only 5m, turn right on a narrow hidden level path into the wood. In 150m, your path goes under wires in a clear strip. Immediately after the wires, at a fork, keep left on a dry level path. It takes you over a pair of stiles, the first of which is redundant, followed by a fingerpost pointing you up over a stream into a large upward-sloping grassy meadow. Your route is up the left-hand side of the meadow. However, the path ahead seems to want you to go up to the right; so you need to switch to the left once you reach the smooth grass. There is no marked path, so you need to keep going upwards, within reach of the left-hand edge. When you reach the top, just before a hedgerow across your path, go left over a stile in the corner and turn right. Follow the path close to the meadow you were in, shortly reaching a road. Turn right on the road, with fine views on your right.

 5 In 100m, look for a small fingerpost on the left, easily missed. Turn left here past an old wooden barrier on a footpath into Leggett's Wood. In only 10m, at a post with a yellow arrow, turn left. Your path immediately veers right and goes down under tall pines on what is probably an old foresters' path. Go over a wide crossing path on a narrow path between bracken, then through two wooden barriers either side of a wide crossing path, confirmed by yellow arrows. (If the first barrier is overgrown, bypass it to the right, turn left on the crossing path and right in 10m through the second wooden barrier.) Your route is now downhill on a dirt path for 100m to another pair of barriers, either side of a sandy horse path, and down steps. Your path descends for 150m between firs, under tall pines and over an unneeded 2-plank bridge. It then goes through more pines and crosses the sandy horse track again. Keep left, going down through more pines.

- 6 Go over a little wide bridge and straight ahead at a post with yellow arrows. Your path veers a fraction left, as indicated by faint yellow waymarkers. It then turns right at a yellow arrow, down and across a wooden bridge with a rail. Your path goes over another bridge, this time with two rails. Continue straight ahead for 100m to a wooden barrier and fingerpost. Turn left in the direction of the pointer on a wide forestry path. Pink orchids are on display in June. In 50m, you reach a major junction of wide tracks. Go straight over a wide crossing track and continue up a wide track opposite. In 350m, near the top, a green forestry track joins from the right, you pass a cleared space on the left and meet a 3-way fingerpost on the right.

Decision point. You now have an option to visit Bateman's, Rudyard Kipling's wonderful historic house and garden. If you would like to do this, or at least to view the house from the outside, go to the end of this text and do the Bateman's Loop. Otherwise, continue with the next section.

- 7 Avoid the wide path on the right and, just 5m further on, leave the forestry track by forking right on a narrow path into the woodland of High Wood. In summer dense growths of pink foxgloves adorn this path. After nearly 400m, the path runs under trees and wheels right to a swing-gate and thence out onto the open hillside. Head straight down the steepest part of the hill on a path through bracken. You pass a painted yellow post and take a clear path between thick bracken, getting steeper as it goes through trees. Finally at the bottom, go through a small wooden gate to meet a path in the valley by a fingerpost. Turn left on this path.

The Bateman's Loop re-joins the walk here.

- 8 Keep ahead through a large wooden gate along the left-hand side of the meadow. Just before an oak tree in the centre of the meadow, go right through a large (usually open) metal gate, over the Dudwell Stream, and left up a grassy slope, staying beside a meadow on your right. Your path goes through a wooden swing-gate into the high beeches of Bog Wood. After 350m in this wood, your path emerges through a wooden swing-gate into a sheep meadow. Continue up the right-hand side of this long meadow and, at the top, turn left along the far side beside a fence. At the far top corner, go through a wooden swing-gate and bear right across a small sheep meadow. Go through a swing-gate beside a metal gate and veer right towards a house with an oast.

- 9 Go through a large metal gate by a redbrick house and keep straight ahead on a tarmac drive past gardens, houses and cottages, ignoring a junction on the right. Keep on the drive to just before the main road. Here, by a line of concrete bollards, veer left on a tarmac drive past houses. The drive bends right to the main road. Cross the road and turn left on the footway. Very soon, you reach the village of Burwash Weald and The Wheel, now re-opened after a long refurbishment. The "Wheel" is a very friendly pub, offering an extensive menu (including all day weekends) at reasonable prices in the very pleasant restaurant area. They welcome walkers. The pub provides Harvey's Sussex, Adnams and Wadworth (which may alternate with other brews).

Leg 3: Burwash Weald to Woods Corner 5½ km=3½ miles

Summary: This leg starts from this large village, down through lovely open fields towards the dark looming Dallington Forest. You then have an amazing long and tricky woodland walk ending at an idyllic bridge over the Willingford stream. There are plentiful signs so you won't get lost, but you need to keep alert. The Swan Inn provides a warm welcome at the end of this leg.

1 Cross the main road from the Wheel pub and go down the lane opposite, Willingford Lane. In 40m, turn right on a signposted footpath. Your path goes down through shrubs and woodland and takes you through a small wooden gate, turning immediately right over a bridge across a stream (a delightful spot) and left again. You now climb through hollies and beeches and go over a stile into a sheep pasture. Keep going up along the left-hand side and, at the top, go over a stile and bear left on a tarmac drive.

2 As you pass some barns, Mad Jack's Obelisk and Sugarloaf come into view on the hills to your left (foliage permitting). Ignore a footpath on the right before passing two large metal gates. Suddenly, you are approaching Henhurst, an exquisite timbered Jacobean farm house. Keep left through a wooden gate, passing the house on your right. (Dog owners beware: there is a new low-level electric fence adjacent to the path!) You come through another wooden gate and a further one at the far end before zigzagging right-left to continue downhill on a wide path through woodland. At the end, go over a stile into a meadow with sudden great open views ahead.

3 Go down the right-hand side of the meadow, ignoring a stile on the right and go over a stile in the bottom corner. Go straight across the centre of the next field on a faint path, keeping parallel to the right-hand edge and go through a gap in the hedgerow on the far side, about 20m from the right-hand corner, confirmed by a little fingerpost. Go straight down the centre of the next field on a faint path, heading for the looming crest of Dallington Forest ahead. Keep ahead down into the far corner and here go over a long bridge across the Dudwell Stream which has a metal gate on each side by a small waterfall.

4 Bear left after the bridge and go up the right-hand side of the next pasture. At the top of the slope, bear right by a large ash tree into the adjacent meadow. Keep ahead, passing a yellow arrow on your left, to go through a marshy patch. (To avoid the marshy patch, you can pass the yellow arrow on your right and immediately turn right.) Your route goes through a small gap in the trees. Bear a fraction left and follow the yellow arrow into and across the next meadow, heading just to the left of the larger of two dilapidated farm buildings you can see ahead. You meet the fence at a corner near the building. Go right here over a stile, walk past the building and keep ahead on a grassy path, heading towards a large house in a dip ahead. At the end, by a redundant stile, turn left on a driveway, immediately reaching Willingford House, part of a small hamlet called Glazier's Forge.

- 5 Keep left over a bridge across the Willingford Stream and continue up the track. Stay with the track as it bends right. In only another 20m, at a small fingerpost, turn left but immediately fork right, as indicated by a yellow arrow, on a winding sandy path going uphill under trees. After nearly 150m, turn right at a 4-way fingerpost.
- 6 Your path shortly winds its way past an open area of Long Wood that has recently been cleared and allowed to regrow naturally. Follow the path which is now clearly defined with new fencing and the occasional yellow arrow. In 250m the path curves left beside a large beech and, 50m later reaches another large (but fractured) beech next to a marker post. Turn smartly left here on a narrow path uphill. The path becomes a beautiful woodland path running high above the valley on your right. As you enter tall dark pines, the path forks. Take the yellow-arrowed left fork, a level path, avoiding the right-hand option which descends. This path takes you for 200m or so to meet a major crossing path. Go straight over the crossing path, past a wooden barrier.
- 7 This section is a traverse of Forge Wood, which is quite an adventure as the path is narrow and twisty for some distance. There are sufficient yellow markers to guide you all the way but you just need to be more vigilant than usual so as not to lose your way. At first you are led along a narrow path through pines by yellow arrows on marker posts. Your path now descends and goes right over a (dry ditch) footbridge, then left through a wood of oak and birch. Next, you bridge another stream, your path winds a lot through a slightly marshy area and you go over a 2-plank bridge. The woodland now is lighter and quite luminous. Another stream appears down on your left where there is a small bench seat. The next obstacle is a picturesque sight: down steps to a very long wooden bridge across a stream where another stream joins it on your left. Up steps and down, you come to a 3-way fingerpost and you are out of the woods.
- 8 Ignoring an overgrown bridleway on your left, continue straight ahead for 20m, between stumps, to a junction of stony tracks. Turn left here between two thick posts on a straight wide dirt path in the direction of a blue arrow. The path gradually ascends with a series of heavy wooden beams acting as shallow steps. The path widens and there is some mud for a short distance before you emerge by a 4-way fingerpost at a road junction by the entrance to Highlands Rose Farm. Follow the tarmac lane straight ahead. Note the colony of cats in the second house, Half Moon Cottage.
- 9 Just before some houses on your left, ignore a (somewhat hidden) stile in the hedgerow but, just after Stacey's House, go left over a stile. (If very overgrown, you can stay on the lane, but this shortcut soon improves.) Take the right fork at once, veering away from the hedge. Your path leads past a pretty little pond and up into beechwoods. Once out into an open meadow, with great views, turn immediately right on a narrow path, which veers slightly left, and proceed to a stile in the hedge between two large trees directly ahead of you. The path leads between hedges and walls to a road with the old (but still working) Post Office on your right. Turn left on the little service lane, followed by a footway, leading to the Swan at Woods Corner where the walk began.

The “Swan Inn” is remarkable for its menu written on several chalk boards near the bar. You can order up to 15 starters, steaks, fresh fish, not to mention snacks galore and eat them either down some stairs in the side garden or in a light and airy dining room that with good views. Beer is less wide-ranging with Wadworth and Harveys on offer. The interior is unspoilt and bar staff are very friendly too.

The Bateman’s Loop 2 km=1½ miles

Take this short and interesting diversion if you would like to visit Bateman’s, the house of Rudyard Kipling, Nobel-prize-winning author of the Jungle Book.

Immediately after the 4-way fingerpost turn sharp right on a good path that goes shortly through a small metal gate into a meadow. Keep down the left-hand side of the meadow and, very soon, by a large beech, go through a large old metal gate down through woodland. After the wood, keep ahead through the buildings of Park Farm. Go over a bridge, past an oast, ignoring a gate with arrows on your right and staying on the drive. The drive goes through a large wooden gate by a house and continues on tarmac with the weatherboarded Oast House on your left. It then goes across a bridge over the Dudwell. Soon the stone façade of Bateman’s is on your left.

According to tradition, Bateman’s, built in 1634, was first owned by a Wealden ironmaster. This is quite possible because there were several forges in the area, supplied by iron embedded in the local sandstone. Rudyard Kipling, Nobel Prize-winning author of “Kim” and “The Jungle Book” moved there in 1902 and converted what had been a rather shabby farmhouse to what you see now. He lived here until his death in 1936. The house, now owned by the National Trust, is open mid-March to October Mon - Wed and weekends, the wonderful gardens most of the time.

After possibly visiting the house and garden, retrace your steps back over the Dudwell bridge and alongside the wall of the estate. Immediately after the Oast House and the little adjoining house, turn right on a track. The track runs past the Mill House on the right to the mill pond. Keep left round the pond and take the wide path ahead alongside a water channel on your left. This takes you over a sluice and through a small wooden gate. At a fingerpost, avoid a footpath and bridge on the right and follow the woodland path, through a wooden swing-gate. This takes you out into an open meadow. Keep ahead along the left-hand side of the meadow with the Dudwell stream over on your right. Near the far end, you reach a large metal gate. Turn left through the gate and turn right in the adjoining meadow. Soon you pass a 3-way fingerpost. Keep straight ahead. [Apr 2019: work was in progress on the mill pond requiring a detour along newly laid paths and a metal bridge with two gates either end; note that your route now crosses the stream into the next meadow, rather than directly ahead up into the woods, so this is more of a right turn.]

Now resume the main walk at Leg 2 Section 8.

Getting there

By car: Woods Corner is on the B2096, just east of Heathfield. Heathfield can be reached on the A267 from Tunbridge Wells or via the A22 at Uckfield, on the B2102. Go east on the A265 and, just outside Heathfield, fork right in the direction of Punnetts Town, Battle. If coming via the A21, go through Robertsbridge and turn right in the centre of the village, signposted Brightling. Start the walk there or continue, following the signpost for Woods Corner. The car park to the Swan Inn now displays a Customers Only sign. There is parking on the roadside strip directly opposite and also on the main roadside about 150 yds west from the Swan.

By bus/train: bus 318 from Etchingam railway station to Burwash Weald. Bus 254 from Tunbridge Wells similarly. Check the timetables.
