Village, woodland, views, bluebells, stream valley

In Brief

Here is a peaceful rural ramble through the meadows and woodlands of southwest Surrey. It starts in Chiddingfold, one of Surrey's most picturesque villages which offers good chances for a rest and refreshment. Near the end, it takes you through some spectacular wooded terrain. At the time this walk was done, there were no ploughed fields along the way and only a few sheep for companionship.

The best time to do this walk is late spring, when many of the paths are fringed with bluebells. In the centre of the walk there is a chance to visit one of Surrey's best secrets: a garden famous for its blazing spring blooms (modest entry fee). Nearby, there is also an excellent pub/restaurant (to enquire at The Mulberry, ring 01428-644460).

The paths on this walk are usually clear but in high summer you will encounter one or two patches of nettles and other undergrowth when shorts are definitely not recommended. Much of the walk is along good farm tracks or quiet lanes. However, since this is a Wealden walk, inevitably you will encounter some muddy sections, making boots necessary, except possibly in dry summer weather. The stiles at the start of this walk now have wire fencing, leaving no gap for your dog, so he cannot be too big to be lifted over.

The walk begins at Chiddingfold, Surrey, postcode GU8 4TX. Park alongside the Green. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

There is a shop at Chiddingfold and the Crown Inn (founded 1250) and the Swan Inn serve good food. There is also "Elliotts Coffee Shop". You will find a hilarious and informative account of the village in another walk in this series: "Witley, Hambledon, Chiddingfold".

head to the right over a small bridge and stile into a sheep pasture. Cross the pasture aiming for the right-hand edge of a line of trees on the other side. Once there, go through a metal gate and continue uphill next to a fence on your right. In the far corner, crossing some planks over a damp patch, go through a metal kissing-gate and cross the centre of the next sheep meadow, aiming to the right of a large cream-and-red house visible ahead, adjoining some long buildings (actually racing stables). Cross a ditch by a flat bridge, go over a stile next to a large metal gate to a road and turn left on it.

- 4 After only 40m, go right through a small black wooden gate on a signed narrow footpath. (There's a red notice Beware of Adders but they don't amount to much.) This short rather overgrown path comes out into the racing compound. Turn right in front of the first enclosure to come out via a small wooden gate into the yard. Turn right and immediately left, following a tarmac track, keeping watch for horses and riders. The track crosses a white-fenced "gallop" and becomes gravel. Follow the track as it curves first right* then left to go through a wide gap in the far hedge. Do not go through the gap but leave the track here by turning right along the edge of the grass. (The statutory route is more elaborate. If you want to walk strictly by-the-rules, do as follows. Just before the track curves right, fork left across the grass, heading for a wide gap to the left of two massive oaks. As you go through the gap (careful - ditch!), you meet a two-way fingerpost. Turn right on the edge of a hayfield, beside the hedge on your right. Where you are joined by a cinder track, go right through a wide gap and immediately turn left along the edge of the grass.) In 15m, ignore the first yellow arrow on your left and continue to the far corner. (*Or you can turn left here, right in 50m at a crosspaths bearing left opposite a 3-plank bridge.)

- 5 In the corner, go up over a 3-plank bridge and take a path straight ahead, gently uphill through a wood, Surrey Copse (now colonised by foxgloves after forestry work). Soon your path crosses an open strip under wires. At the top, veer left at a yellow arrow immediately reaching a fingerpost (hidden in trees on your left). Turn sharp right on a clear path into the woods. The floor here is thick with bluebells in late spring. The path finally leads out into a small meadow. Veer left to a gap beside a metal gate and turn right on a tarmac lane. In 70m, go left through a modern kissing-gate into a large sloping meadow (which also serves as a regular pasture for cattle, easily skirted round if you wish).

- 6 Go straight across the meadow, keeping slightly to the right of an oak tree in the middle of the field. Ignore a metal gate over to the right and aim instead for the metal gate straight ahead. Go through the gate into the woods of Griggs Bottom and immediately turn left at a fingerpost. In 60m, at another fingerpost, your path veers right up deeper into the wood. In about 150m, the path emerges into a large sloping green field. Keep ahead along the right-hand side of the field. At the corner, go through a small wooden gate and turn left on a wide farm track. In 30m, follow a hairpin round to the right. In 200m veer left towards the farm buildings. Note: if you have a dog, he must be on a lead anywhere near the buildings! You pass a reedy pond and, on your right, Redlands Farmhouse, then Honeypot Cottage and the buildings of Gostrode Farm. Stay on the tarmac, ignoring a footpath on your right and a bridleway on your left at a bend. Finally you pass some houses, go over a grid (or through a small wooden gate), pass a footpath on your left, and progress onwards till you reach the main A283

Petworth Road by a BP filling station (which serves snacks and drinks) in the hamlet of Ramsnest Common.

You will be continuing by crossing the road and turning right. But first, less than 100m along the verge on your left is one of the best pub/restaurants in the neighbourhood. The Mulberry is nice-sized and welcoming with a little garden on the side, reported “excellent” by walkers. As much a restaurant as a pub, it offers an inventive menu, including such things as crabmeat profiteroles, herb-stuffed chicken in serrano and a daily special. The opening hours are generous too.

7 Having crossed the road and turned right (or going straight on if returning from The Mulberry), go 150m along the footway and turn left on a side road, Killinghurst Lane. However, by continuing another 100m or so along the main road, you could make an excursion to Ramster Garden (previously known as “Ramsnest Garden”) (pay on entry), famous for its glorious spring colours. Follow quiet Killinghurst Lane, catching a glimpse of the Garden on your right as you go. The lane dips to go over a stream, passing farm buildings and winds its way uphill. The lane zigzags through a broken wall and descends. You pass a meadow on your left with a beautiful cedar, belonging to historic Killinghurst House. Finally, after 1.2 km, the lane takes a left bend.

8 Leave the lane here by turning right at a fingerpost on a narrow path. The path (very overgrown in summer) runs along the right-hand side of a field and, in 40m, forks right into woods. You are in a long strip of woodland known as Hollis's Hanger. It runs beside a stream gully down on your left [2020: over several fallen trees, all manageable]. This primeval and exciting landscape will be yours to enjoy for 1 km – and probably alone because few people come here. In late spring, this is a notable place for bluebells too. Eventually the path descends to the level of the stream and crosses it by a bridge. After the bridge, keep left, following a thin stream (a dry gully in summer) on your left, following the yellow marker. You may need to hop around the mud in this section. Your path crosses the stream using a 3-plank bridge. At the top, you come to a T-junction with a much wider path. Turn right on this path.

9 The path runs past some corrugated farm sheds and onwards through woodland (testing your mud-hopping skills again). It eventually joins a tarmac driveway coming in on the left from Hollyhurst. This lane soon passes houses on both sides in the hamlet of Upper Sydenhurst. Keep straight on along this very quiet cul-de-sac lane passing several footpaths on the left. In one more km, the lane reaches the main road in Chiddingfold. Turn left and cross the road to the Crown Inn and the Green where the walk began.

Getting there

By car: Chiddingfold is on the A283 Milford-Petworth road. If coming from the London area, turn off after Guildford through Milford and take the A283 south.

By bus/train: there are several bus routes to Chiddingfold from Haslemere station but they run on odd days. The best idea is to check the web for the latest options.
