River, disused railway, woodland, green meadows, villages

In Brief

This is a monster linear walk from Guildford to Haslemere with access at each end by British Rail. It takes you through some typical Surrey countryside, such as you find on some of the favourite country walks in this region. Along the way, you visit two especially picturesque villages, Hascombe and Chiddingfold. You also make a circuit of Hascombe Hill with some great views. This walk goes through some wild terrain with few roads and there is very little road walking.

This walk can be combined with the Haslemere-Guildford Monster, which makes the reverse journey through totally different country, to make a Double Monster of a bone-shattering 41 miles.

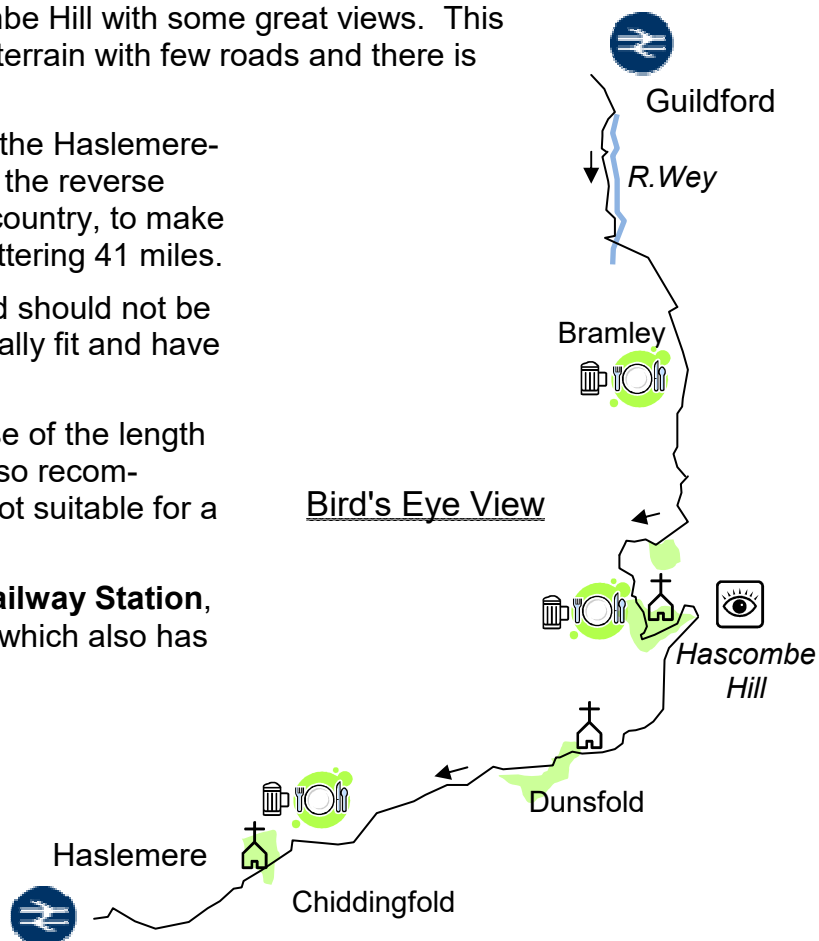

Warning! This is a long walk and should not be attempted unless you are physically fit and have back-up support.

Boots are recommended because of the length of this walk. A walking pole is also recommended. This monster walk is not suitable for a dog. Cover your legs!

The walk begins at Guildford Railway Station, Surrey, and ends at Haslemere which also has its Railway Station.

The Walk

Trek 1 Guildford to Bramley 6¼ km=4 miles

- 1 Come out from Guildford Railway Station to the taxi rank and turn right. Follow the wide footway as it curves left close to the road and go down the underpass straight ahead, going through a tunnel under the road. Turn left and go up steps, taking you to the footway on other side of the main road. Keep dead straight on, on a path between two brand new redbrick buildings. The path leads diagonally down more step to the banks of the River Wey. Turn right along the riverside path, going under a main road, passing a car park on your right and reaching another road with the pedestrianised Town Bridge on your left. Staying on the same side of the river, cross straight over towards the White House pub. Turn left immediately before the pub and right along the riverside.

Just to your right, over the grass, is one of the several "Alice" sculptures you will find around Guildford. Lewis Carroll stayed here with his sister out of Oxford term time and he is buried here. This one, "Down the Rabbit Hole", shows the scene from the start of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland".

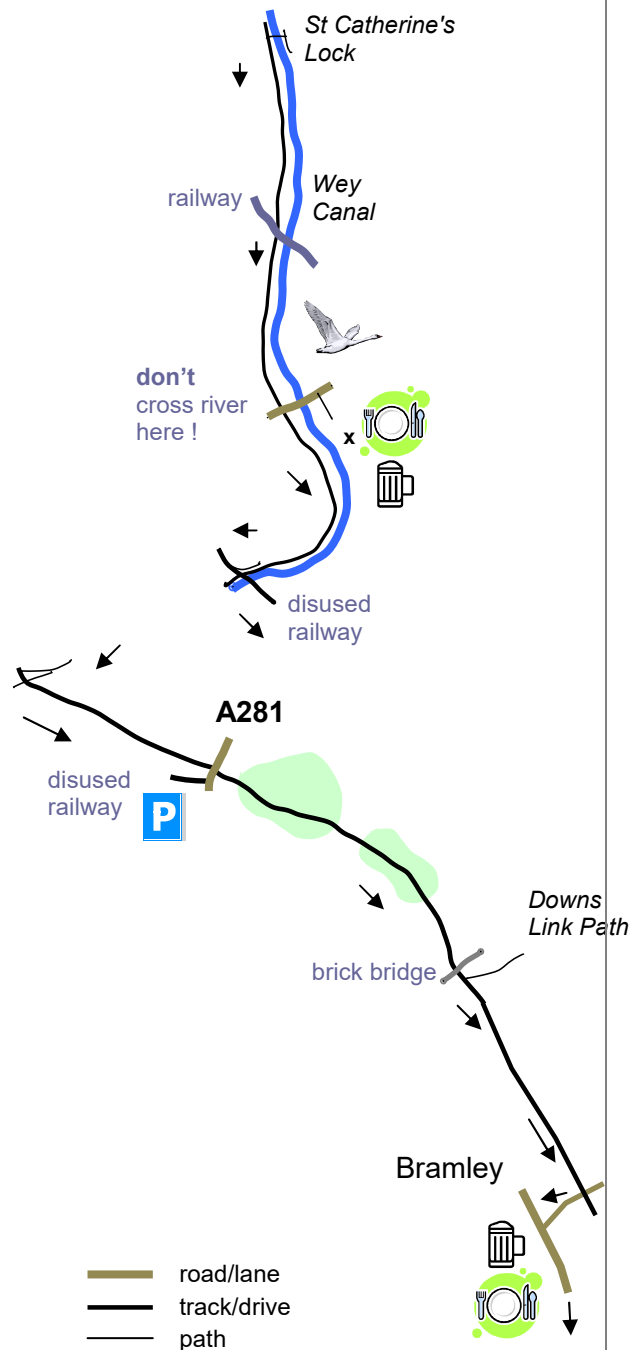

- 2 Continue along the riverside with the rather unedifying edifice of the old Debenhams store on your left, later the rounded exterior of the Yvonne Arnaud Theatre. There is a car park on your right as you approach a small steel bridge. Turn left across the bridge over the river and turn sharp right along the towpath, with the Millmead Lock on your left. [*Jul 2020-2026: the path was still cordoned off for work on the river bank just ahead. Walkers have to return to the A281, turn right, passing the Millbrook Car Park and reaching the Weyside pub; just beyond the pub a metal bridge on the right drops you back onto the towpath. This is beginning to look like a permanent change.] You are walking between the Wey Navigation on your left and the river itself on your right. This is the start of the Wey South Path (WSP), a 35 mile=55 km walk which follows the river as far as Amberley in West Sussex. You come over a sluice. Immediately after, opposite the Guildford Boathouse, fork right on a narrow surfaced path. Your path turns right, over another sluice, and you are now following the right bank of the main river/canal. After 700m of gentle tree-lined meandering, you come to a junction on your right where the North Downs Way (NDW) joins the route, by a little stone bridge and stone seat. Continue along the riverside, ignoring a footbridge on your left. The river bends sharp left and right again. Ignore a footpath and railway tunnel on the right. Soon you reach St Catherine's Lock.

3 Continue for another km along the towpath, going under a railway bridge, and finally arriving at a narrow road over Broadford Bridge, where you need to take care because of the traffic. Cross the road directly over and continue along the same side of the canal. (But, by turning left over the bridge for 150m, you will reach the Parrot Inn, a large family pub.) You are now on a National Trust path, part of the Wey Navigation. The path gradually bends right with the canal and reaches a large black metal bridge. This is part of the disused railway which is now a fine straight walking track. Go through a wooden swing-gate and take the rising path forking right and turn left on the track over the bridge.

4 Follow the wide straight track all the way to a main road, the A281, close to Trunley Heath Road and a car park. Cross the main road and continue on the track at the other side. The track follows its straight course over an arm of the canal, through woodland. On your right soon is a memorial pier with picnic tables. In 700m you reach a brick bridge. Go under the bridge to a 3-way fingerpost where the Downs Link Path (DLP) joins you from the left. The DLP is a 37 mile=60 km path linking the North Downs Way with the South Downs Way. Keep straight on, now following both the WSP and the DLP. In about 3½ km=2 miles, you pass Bramley and Wonersh station and come to a (disused) level crossing. Turn right at the level crossing, thus leaving those long-distance footpaths, and turn left at the main road into Bramley village, a good place to stop for refreshments.

Trek 2 Bramley to Hascombe 7¼ km=4½ miles

1 Continue along the main road through the village. Just after a car dealership and after the junction with Mill Lane, the footpath leaves the road and re-joins it. 30m further, just past a small green, take the signposted bridleway forking right, Woodrough Lane. Continue ahead on a residential road, cross over another road and take the bridleway opposite at a fingerpost. The steep-sided gully leads uphill and then the path runs beside a large horse pasture, over a track by a barn and between more pastures. At the other side, you walk beside some woodland on the left. Stay next to the fences on your right as you reach a white house Daneshill. Avoid a right turn here and keep ahead, quickly right-left, along the drive. Your path now follows a narrow finger of woodland between sheep pastures. It descends to a bend in a gravel path. Turn right on the path shortly passing the building at Upper Bonhurst. The path continues between willow banks and comes to a T-junction at a fingerpost. Turn right, thus joining the Greensand Way (GW) and immediately coming to another junction. Turn left, ignoring a footpath on the right, thus regaining your original direction.

2 After a narrow section, the path becomes a wide farm track. After Keepers the track becomes even wider and leads you into the hamlet of Gatestreet Farm. Gate Street Barn, just ahead, has been converted into a wedding venue. At the corner of the building, at a fingerpost, turn right, still on the GW, going through a wooden gate beside a cattle grid. Follow the track along the edge of a big pasture, going through a wooden gate. It bends left and passes a low barn, going over another cattle grid (or stile). Follow the main drive, passing on your left a small meadow used by donkeys. In 40m you will see a marker post on your right. Fork right here up the side of the grassy meadow and straight on, passing a little summer house, to a small wooden gate visible on the other side in trees. The path crosses a gravel drive and descends a grassy slope to a bend in a track. Follow the curving track uphill through wooden gates and up into a meadow. Keep straight ahead across the centre of the meadow on a clear grassy track. The land belongs to the Wintershall Estate and the open-air theatre on your left is used by them to stage Christian dramatic productions.

3 About 20m before a fence ahead, veer left through a wooden swing-gate down into the woods. The path runs just inside a wood which was obviously once an old coppice with, on your right, a sheep field. After going between two posts, the path narrows through bracken near a wire fence on your right and eventually comes down to a lane. On your left is the exquisite Scotsland Farm, complete with converted barn and willows. However, your route is right on the lane.

4 In 30m, leave the lane by forking left on a signposted bridleway. The path runs under trees and bends right on a deep sunken path with pines on the left. As it levels out, you come to a post with arrows where the GW bends away to the left. Leave the GW here by veering right, ignoring a small wooden gate. The path bends immediately left down into woods and gradually descends, reaches the corner of a pleasing patchwork of horse meadows and runs along the right-hand side of them. The path runs past Langhurst Farm on your right with its beautiful converted barn. Eventually, after a long meadowside walk, you arrive at a 3-way junction by a multitude of metal gates and old shacks under a junction of overhead wires near the village of Winkworth.

Trek 3 Hascombe to Chiddingfold 11 km=6½ miles

1 Stay on this side of the road and turn left on a driveway beside the pub on the other side. In about 100m, turn right beside a garage built in the centre of a wide footpath. (If this path is very muddy, you can delay the right turn by going another 5m, scrambling up a bank and taking a high path above the main path.) There is a yellow arrow pointing this way and you will be following them for most of the first part. After a gentle ascent in a sunken path, veer left uphill. You join a track coming in from the right. In spring, bluebells are in evidence. In about another 200m, at a fork, take the more level path right, ignoring the wider track left. The slope below was cleared of brushwood recently, giving you good views across to the Loxhill valley and the Hurtwood. At a T-junction by some tall beeches turn right through rhododendrons.

2 This fine path curves round the hill and occasionally you have good views on your right. On your left, beyond the steep banks, are the remains of a Celtic hill fortress. You eventually pass, on the left, a large sandy bank with a large log serving as a seat and opposite, on the right, an opening in the trees with fine views to Dunsfold Aerodrome and the South Downs. 350m further, you suddenly enter a forest of thin silver birches. You meet a junction with a rough wide path on your left. Shortly after, you will see two perfectly conical conifers on your left – the second slightly thinner than the first but both now obscured by saplings. Just 30m after them, fork left on a clear but narrower rising path, leaving the main descending track. Don't miss this turning! as a guide, the left fork is clearly marked with a large log lying on its side on the path with a yellow arrow nailed to it.

3 This pleasant path rises into a high area with holly and beech and passes by an old metal fence. A smaller path joins it from the left and the path begins to descend into a valley with open fields on the other side. After a wooden barrier, it meets a junction near the field. Turn right here on a sunken path for a short distance. At the top of a rise, you meet a crossing path. Keep straight ahead on a wide woodland path which becomes sunken. It gradually descends and, after 350m, reaches the garden of a house.

4 Immediately turn sharp right following a yellow arrow on a footpath which runs past gardens on the left and a tennis court on the right, up six steps, and then into woodland. Follow the clear woodland path for 200m, finally going through a wooden gate into an open grassy meadow. Keep dead straight ahead across the centre, slightly uphill with fine views left, keeping the young birches, then redwoods, on your left. You pass a redundant stile into a second, even larger, sheep pasture. The long flat profile of Black Down is visible ahead. The stones on the left are the Dragonstones, looking very much like a megalithic stone circle but in reality built in 1995-7 by an order of neo-Druids. As a farm building comes into view, veer slightly left aiming for the far corner and, on reaching it, go through a large wooden gate to a tarmac farm track.

5 Keep ahead on the track downhill. Where it reaches a T-junction, bear right but, in just 40m, go left over a stile. Go across the centre of a meadow, passing to the right of a large old water feature. (The author passed a herd of cute bullocks and noticed some walkers keeping to the other bank.) It ends with a decorative flint bridge and pine trees. Keep straight ahead to a stile in the hedgerow, almost opposite the flint bridge, and carefully cross the road, Godalming Road, via two stiles. Keep the same direction across the next hayfield passing the corner of a paddock fence and then following a line of young trees. Cross a farm drive via two wooden gates and, keeping the same direction, go left through a gate half way along the hedgerow, then over a stile. Turn right on the main road into the village of Dunsfold.

The name Dunsfold comes from the Saxon words "dun" (hill) and "fold" (enclosure).

- 6 In about 300m, you reach the village green. Stay next to the houses on the right, following a track, grass and tarmac. Soon you pass a small pond, then a larger duckpond where the drive becomes shingly. Turn right after Eden Cottage on a marked footpath over a stile. Veer left on the tarmac drive, avoiding a footpath right, and follow a wood-chipped path to the left of a green industrial building. Go through a metal gate into woodland, down, ignoring a footpath right, over a stream, up again, and through another metal gate. Go along the right-hand side of a small meadow. (Or, if you don't want to disturb some very pretty heifers, along the left-hand side of the adjoining meadow.) On the other side, go through a metal gate to a lane. Turn left on the lane. In 180m, turn right on another lane, Church Lane. This lane takes you past several attractive cottages and reaches Dunsfold Church.

- 7 Take the track on the right of the church, marked as a bridleway, with a converted barn on its right, and continue on a grassy path beside the churchyard, avoiding a footpath right after 50m. At the end, go through a metal gate into woodland. The path bends right and runs alongside a large meadow on the left. Where the path ends, go through a small wooden gate and weave left-right into the meadow. Continue along the length of the meadow on the right-hand side for about 200m to a narrower part and here switch to the left-hand side for another 100m to a large wooden gate on the left. Go through the gate and over a sturdy bridge onto a woodland path.

- 8 The path winds through forest, at first near the meandering stream on the left and later touching it again. Finally the path ends at a gate and becomes fenced with a meadow on the right. The path bends left over the stream, up into the woods and then right on a high path, finally running beside a meadow and two houses on the left, the first of which is a converted barn, and out to a lane. Turn right on the lane, ignoring a footpath sign directly opposite. In 60m, fork left on a bridleway. The path runs for nearly 700m along its own narrow strip of woodland and finally reaches a road. Turn left on the road. Follow the road Vann Lane for 400m, as far as some houses and a road junction. Ignore the junction and continue on the road (Pockford Road) for another 800m into the village of Chiddingfold with its big green, two pubs, a church and many attractive buildings. Turn left alongside the green on your right, heading towards the church.

There are shops in Chiddingfold, including "Elliotts Coffee Shop" who serve good tea too. The "Crown Inn" dates at least from 1365, making it the oldest licensed inn in England. The "Swan Inn", a stone's throw away, is another good local.

Trek 4 Chiddingfold to Haslemere 7½ km=5 miles

- 1 Cross the road to the church. Chiddingfold church of St Mary dates back to around 1190. The church and its churchyard with its notable brick-vaulted graves are worth visiting. Turn left on the main road, passing the entrance to the church, and turn right on Mill Lane. Follow this cul-de-sac lane for 900m, eventually passing the imposing entrance to Little Sydenhurst on the right and a controversial new millionaire's mansion opposite it. 150m further, you pass the venerable Sydenhurst Farm, ignoring a tarmac lane on the right marked as a footpath. 50m further on, after a modern cottage, ignore another footpath sign and a modern kissing gate on your right, continuing on the lane for another 350m.
- 2 Just before a large wooden gate at the entrance to Hollyhurst, keep left on a bridleway into woodland. In late spring, the mud here is compensated by a great show of bluebells. The path runs beside a wire fence on your right and in 250m runs past some corrugated farm sheds on your right. In 150m, ignore a footpath on your left. In 250m you reach a tarmac lane in the hamlet of Frillinghurst. Turn left on the lane, passing a red tile-hung house Furzfield on your left with its sculpted hedge. Stay on the lane, passing the delectable Dell Farm House, till it bends left 50m further on. Leave the lane here by continuing straight ahead on a tarmac/concrete track, by a sign for Frillinghurst, passing more houses of the hamlet. In 350m, just after some concrete barns and as the concrete track starts to go uphill, look for a stile on your left.
- 3 Turn left over the stile (or through a metal gate) and cross a meadow, heading for a swing-gate in the fence. After the swing-gate, continue to the edge of the meadow and veer right. Ignore a kissing-gate on your left but go through a kissing-gate in the corner into woods. In 50m, at a marker post, ignore a path on your right and continue ahead. Your path soon goes downhill and leads you over a long bridge across a stream. The mud here is the worst part but it will improve! After the bridge, the ascending path curves right and, at a junction by a 2-way fingerpost, turns diagonally left. (Don't miss this turn!) Your path goes deeper into the wood, through a clearing with bracken and back into the depths of Frillinghurst Wood. After a section of birch and bracken, your path runs along the left-hand side of a large field. Near the far side, go left and right through a gap to switch to the adjoining field. You meet a large pond by a T-junction with a tarmac drive. Your route is left on the drive but it is worth having a peek at the 500-year-old section of Imbhams Farm with its ancient barns and sometimes donkeys, just on your right.

- 4 In only 20m, turn right with the tarmac, staying next to the pond. The drive zigzags between farm buildings and continues for 700m, reaching a road, Holdfast Lane. Cross the road, slightly left, and go through a small wooden gate by a house. The path curves right in a meadow and soon goes through a gate to join a track serving several houses. Your route is now straight on through woodland and a charming series of meadows, bridges, woods and gates (never stiles!). Most of the area here belongs to the National Trust and you pass signs for Swan Barn Farm, Witley Copse and Mariners Rewe, and later Hunter Basecamp. At a signpost in woodland, fork left and, at the next signpost, keep straight on. You eventually arrive at a farm via a gate onto a track. Turn quickly right and left and follow the track ahead. About 200m after the farm, go right through a wooden gate marked with the Serpent Trail symbol. Go up a grassy path by a fence to a swing gate and noticeboard for Swan Barn Farm. Turn right on the path with views right across the meadow, passing several seats. At a wall that conceals the Haslemere Town Well, turn left to reach the High Street in the country town of Haslemere.

If you are doing the Guildford-Haslemere Double Monster and returning to Guildford, your route is right on the High Street. If you would like an over-night stay, there are good hotels in Haslemere, such as the Georgian House and the Station House in the town. There are also B&Bs en route.
