Hills, villages, woodland, views

In Brief

This walk takes you from a glorious part of the North Downs down into the Greensand and the memorable forests and hamlets to the south, then back up to the Downs for more forest and views. The attractive Friday Street lake and pub will be familiar from other walks in this series but the other routes are quite new and the experience unforgettable.

There are some nettles and brambles on this walk during the return to Ranmore Common. Because of the sandy paths, any sensible footwear is fine, except after prolonged rain when boots are essential. Your dog will love this walk too although he may need to be lifted over one or two stiles.

For people who like a shorter walk, there are a North option with stunning views, and a South option with the woods and lake at Friday Street.

The full walk and north walk begin at the National Trust Ranmore Common NT car park, very approximate postcode RH5 6SY, grid ref TQ127502, just off the Ranmore Common Road near Dorking, Surrey, w3w:banana.joke.noise. This is not the big Denbies car park but the other car park, one mile further west (away from Dorking) along the Ranmore Common Road, on your left (payment by app on phone). The south walk begins in Westcott, postcode RH4 3NH: park off the triangular green in the centre of the village. You can also begin in Friday Street, postcode RH5 6JR. For more details, see at the end of this text (→ Getting There).

Overview

The Walk

If you are doing the South walk, starting in Westcott, begin by doing the Westcott West section near the end of this Guide.

Leg 1: Ranmore Common to Westcott 3 km=2 miles

- 1 With your back to the road, starting from the extreme right-hand side of the car park, go ahead beside a metal barrier. Shortly, your route joins a path from the left and zigzags through woodland, on a clear stony path. Ignore the first wide sandy path on the right, turning up the hill. At a marker post [Sep 2025: grounded], your path goes over a crossing path, winds its way onwards, going over another, narrower, crossing path and begins to descend. If you encounter mud here, it is only for a short stretch and not typical of this walk. You soon reach a wide level crossing path at a 4-arm fingerpost. This is the North Downs Way. Cross straight over, on a path which curves left and goes gradually more steeply downhill. At the bottom, turn sharp right.

- 2 Your path goes through a small wooden gate beside a larger one and, after 350m, you reach a wooden gate at a fingerpost. Go left here onto a bridleway between fields. Your way goes under a railway arch and bends right and left, all the time with good views around, especially back and to the left where St Barnabas Church-on-the-Hill is prominent. You pass a barn of Combe Farm and your path bends right towards more buildings. Here, avoid a footpath on the left and its yellow arrow.

- 3 You pass some studio units, The Old Dairy and Stockmans, after which your way bends left on a driveway. You pass a house, Coombe Farm, on your left (note the Red Baron's plane hanging from a tree!). You then pass some woodland before finally reaching a 4-arm fingerpost at a junction. Cross, slightly left, over the tarmac drive, to the footpath opposite. At a wooden gate, keep left in the direction of the yellow arrow, between wire fences and later a rather constricting garden fence. Your path emerges on a driveway by Woodlands to reach a main road, the A25. Turn left on the main road towards the village of Westcott. Pass the junction with Balchins Lane and, shortly after, turn right at the start of a tarmac lane, Rookery Drive.

If you are doing the North walk, omitting Friday Street, skip now to the Westcott East section near the end of this Guide.

Leg 2: Westcott to Friday Street 3½ km=2 miles

- 1 Turn sharp right between the brick pillars of Rookery Drive.

past Pond Cottage to a lane by the lake of Friday Street.

The name "Friday Street" is a little mysterious but the name probably indicates an impoverished out-of-the-way unproductive place, because Friday was a day when not much food was eaten. The lake is in fact a hammer pond, like so many in England, the result of damming the stream to provide water power. "Friday Street" is the name of a track on Surrey native Paul Weller's album "Heavy Soul". Much of this area is preserved by the National Trust.

Your route is left on the lane. (The car park is down the lane on your right.) However, first you will want to take the lane directly opposite, with the lake on your left, to reach the Stephan Langton pub / restaurant in 200m. [Apr 2021: closed! hope it will re-open!] For more details of this interesting local, see the "Stephan Langton pub walk" in this series. You need to retrace your steps after a refreshment break and turn right on the lane by the lakeside.

Leg 3: Friday Street to Westcott 5 km=3½ miles

Just after the lake, before the lane bends left, go right between wooden posts onto a signposted footpath. Your path curves left uphill fairly steeply between hollies and beeches and some fine scots pines. On your right soon is the National Trust's Severell's Copse. Your path runs beside a line of beeches with a bank on your right and reaches a lane. Cross this lane diagonally, a fraction right, shortly reaching another lane at a fingerpost. Cross straight over this lane and continue on a footpath opposite. Very soon, just after your path goes downhill, you reach a fork. Take the right fork, the more level option, avoiding the left-hand descending path. Your path becomes sunken and joins a path coming from the left just as the hamlet of Broadmoor comes into view. Soon, at a marker post, turn smartly left by a house and follow a narrow slope down to a lane. Turn left on the lane into the hamlet.

See mini-map overleaf. The lane passes the well-named Old Cottage, with its stone devil, and Home Farm, a noted stud and livery. Opposite the farmyard, at a fingerpost, turn right on a bridleway. In 100m, at a 3-arm fingerpost, turn left on another wide path. The path goes uphill between the fences of Simons Cottage and Tillingbourne Cottage, over a stream, then rather steeply up. Eventually your path levels out (with a fine view of Leith Hill Tower to your right) and runs beneath some more tall pines. At a junction of sandy paths, keep ahead, a fraction right, reaching that perennial wide sandy byway Wolvens Lane. Cross straight over Wolvens Lane, then go over a low metal barrier and onto another sandy bridleway.

Your path is joined from the right by a broad sandy bridleway. Where the bridleway shortly turns to the left, leave it by taking the right fork, a wide stony downhill path, almost straight ahead. In 80m, you reach a junction of five paths. Take the narrower downhill wooded path straight ahead, a fraction left, as directed by a blue arrow on a marker-post.

- 3 At the bottom, you come to a 3-way junction. Bear left passing a 3-arm fingerpost on a straight path through the conifer forest. As you reach the edge of the forest, ignore a modern kissing-gate on your left and instead stay in the woodland by veering right on a cinder track. The track bends left and passes the redoubtable Squires Farm on your left, with a view of Ranmore church spire on the horizon. As you reach the entrance to the farm, avoid its driveway on the right and keep straight ahead, still on the cinder path. Where the path bends left at a 3-arm fingerpost into woodland, keep straight ahead on a narrower grassy path, shortly going through a modern kissing-gate. Cross the centre of a meadow, slightly right, between electric fences, heading towards a new barn and other buildings on the hill ahead. Your path takes you over a stream in the corner and left on a wide gravel track, fenced on both sides, which gradually veers left, passing the farm buildings of Westlees Farm on your right. Continue on a fenced path along the right-hand side of the long pasture, with the hillock of Bury Hill in view ahead. At the next corner, go right, diagonally across the ragged meadow to the corner of the field, and through a new metal gate to a tarmac lane.

- 4 See mini-map overleaf. Go straight over the lane on a track diagonally opposite, by a Surrey Hills Yurts wooden sign. In 180m you reach a choice of two paths near Mad Horse Copse. Leave the wide path here, taking the right fork just to the left of a sign for Surrey Hills Yurts. Follow this long narrow path, with a wooden fence on both sides, passing on the way a series of wooden bridges. A metal kissing-gate leads you onto the right-hand side of an attractive meadow. In 10m, your path forks a fraction right across the centre, heading for a metal swing-gate visible on the other side. In the far corner, go past the derelict gate, over a bridge, turning immediately left with the path. On your right are the Bury Hill Fisheries, a large angling centre with four lakes. At a bridge with rails and a T-junction, turn left on a wider path. An old optional kissing-gate takes you past Keepers Cottage onto the tarmac of Milton Street, passing the aptly-named Hedgerow and ignoring a bridleway on the right. The very fetching houses here are tile-hung or timbered, some with access over a bridge across a ditch. Spot the statue at no. 4. After Peppermint Cottage on your right, turn left at a fingerpost and a marker badge on a footpath over a narrow bridge, passing a timbered cottage on the right and going uphill on a sheltered path, soon keeping ahead by a fence. Just after a new wooden gate into a garden and before the path rises more steeply, turn right at a Neighbourhood Watch sign onto a narrow path between fences. The path zigzags onto a gravel track, going past a school and leading to the main road. Turn left here on a raised path parallel to the road. Cross by the lights to the Prince of Wales pub on the other side with a traditional menu. If you started the walk in Westcott, continue straight ahead for around 125m until you reach the triangular green where the walk began. Otherwise... Turn right immediately before the Prince of Wales pub.

Leg 4: Westcott to Ranmore Common 3½ km=2 miles

1 You pass the pub's car park on your right. At a road, turn left and immediately right on St John's Road. Where the road bends left at the end, leave it to go straight ahead over a bridge. Go through a metal gate, straight on through either of two more metal swing-gates and then straight ahead over the grass and under wires. Cross a cinder path and go a fraction left uphill on a tarmac lane. The path bends left in front of Springfield House and right by the stables of Bushy Plat Farm. It then runs by a fence, later with fields on your left. In summer this path may be very overgrown. The North Downs loom ahead and you have one more short climb ahead. The path veers away from the fence and takes you over some stepping stones, with ramsons aplenty in springtime. It then goes by an unneeded stile, through a wooden barrier, across a meadow, then through a metal gate and up steps (in 2021 now restored) to the railway line. Cross the line carefully.

2 See mini-map overleaf. Your route goes through another metal gate, up the left-hand side of a meadow and through a large wooden gate, where it is worth looking back to admire the view of the area where you were walking. Continue uphill, up some steps under trees and through a wooden gate to a wide track. Turn left for just 5m and go right up more steps on a path beside a yew wood on the right (beside a tall wood carving on your left). Ignore the first stile on the left and instead go up the steep bank. This is the steepest part of the walk and it is quite a relief to reach a stile on the left. Go over the stile, continue on the other side of the fence and immediately veer left up some steps. Just 10m before a wooden swing-gate at the tree line, turn left and take the right fork, the higher of two narrow paths that run along the contour of the hillside. Pass a gate and seat on the right and continue ahead on the higher path, close to trees on the right. Your path goes very gently uphill, with great views on the left of Dorking, Westcott and Leith Hill Tower. You pass another bench seat. This is part of the Denbies Hillside Nature Trail, established by the National Trust. Finally, you reach another bench and go through a wooden swing-gate. Turn left on the North Downs Way.

Keep to the main path at all times (now much narrower after the section with forestry work), avoiding lesser paths branching off. In about 500m, take the first definite right turn with the path, avoiding a well-used forester's track on your left. 100m further on, turn left at a T-junction on a wide straight path running under tall scots pines. In 170m, you reach a crossing path. Turn right on the path which quickly takes you back to the car park where the walk began.

Westcott West

Do this section first if you are doing the South walk, omitting the North Downs.

With the big triangular green and impressive bus stop in Westcott on your right, walk a short way along the main road. When you meet a junction with the old Cricketers on the left, fork left on Westcott Heath road, heading for Westcott Church visible ahead. The Church of the Holy Trinity is early Victorian, built to a design by George Gilbert Scott. Continue past the church, soon meeting the Greensand Way coming in from your left, as indicated by a signpost. In only 10m, ignore a dirt path on the right leading to the church yard but, immediately after, fork right on a footpath that takes you across the heath and grass, parallel to the lane you were on, with houses on your left. The path meets the lane again at a 2-arm fingerpost where the lane loops sharp right. Cross over the lane to the wide track opposite and continue on a woodland path. This path takes you down through more woodland and, in 250m, reaches Rookery Drive opposite the gate house. Keep left between the brick pillars of Rookery Drive.

Now join the main walk from Leg 2.

Westcott East

Do this section at the end if you are doing the North walk, omitting Friday Street.

Ignore the brick pillars and Gate House of Rookery Drive and instead turn left at a fingerpost on a footpath into the woods. (In 80m, if you choose the more comfortable right fork, be sure to go left up a bank in 30m.) In around 50m, at a fork, take the right option. In a further 250m you come out to a tarmac lane. Turn right, immediately passing a fingerpost on your left. Cross over the lane here and take a path across the heath, parallel to the lane, with houses on your right. In 150m or so, the path meets the tarmac lane. Turn left on the lane, passing Westcott Church on your left. The Church of the Holy Trinity is early Victorian, built to a design by George Gilbert Scott. Continue till you meet the main road in Westcott with the old Cricketers on your right (now a private dwelling) and the big triangular green.

If you began in the Ranmore Common car park, turn left immediately after the Prince of Wales pub and resume the walk at Leg 4.

Getting there

If coming from the Guildford direction on the A25, turn left as you enter Dorking, as for London, and keep left at a sign for Ranmore, continuing as in the paragraph above. (For the more adventurous, turn left off the A25 onto narrow White Down Lane just after Abinger Hammer, turn right at a crossroads onto Ranmore Common Road; the car park is $\frac{3}{4}$ mile on your right.)

By bus/train: bus 21, 22 or 32 from Dorking to Westcott. Check the timetables.
